

Sources and their treatment

Throughput is counted at the point of dispatch¹.

Paragraph 1 between the notes, written long enough to wrap and so to push the note that follows it further down the page.

Paragraph 2 between the notes, written long enough to wrap and so to push the note that follows it further down the page.

Paragraph 3 between the notes, written long enough to wrap and so to push the note that follows it further down the page.

Paragraph 4 between the notes, written long enough to wrap and so to push the note that follows it further down the page.

Paragraph 5 between the notes, written long enough to wrap and so to push the note that follows it further down the page.

Paragraph 6 between the notes, written long enough to wrap and so to push the note that follows it further down the page.

The northern figures are gathered a week later than the rest².

Comparisons with last year are made on the closing figures onlyⁱ.

ⁱ Figures for the previous year are held separately.

¹ The ledgers are closed on the last working day.

² Seasonal adjustment is applied afterwards.